THE CROWN

"The Squire's Son," a two-reel feature, is the Irish romance, which will be the feature of the Crown tomorrow.

Bowing her own desire to her father's will, Kathleen, the daughter of an Irish peasant, consents to marry Michael McGrath, the son of a wealthy squire who has just come into his father's fortune, although her heart tells her she will never be happy except with Barney, her poor sweet-heart.

Barney accepts Kathleen's decision, but demands a final interview with her. Kathleen goes to bid Barney farewell. Her absence is discovered and young McGrath and her father start out in search for her.

When she is found in Barney's arms, young McGrath picks a quarrel with Barney and is given a sound thrashing. McGrath determines to revenge himself and plans to waylay Barney when the latter comes home that night.

In the darkness he mistakes the brother of Father McBride, the village priest, for Barney, and kills him. He then runs to the priest's home to escape the vengeance of the mob which gathers upon the discovery of McBride's body.

Barney leaves in advance of the mob to tell Father McBride of his brother's death. McGrath sees Barney approaching, and unable to believe the evidence of his eyes, thinks it is a ghost. He hides himself in a closet and Barney takes advantage of his fright to lock him in. Although enraged at his brother's murder, Father McBride spurs McGrath. Soon after the mob bursts into the house and drags the Squire's son away.

THE PEOPLE'S

The People's tonight features the eleventh series of the "Lucille Love" serial.

When Lucille escapes from Loubouque's Mexican ranch, she runs into a veritable center of revolution. While hiding from a troop of rebel soldiers, she overhears a plot against an American ranchman. Out of sympathy for her countryman, she flees to the ranch and informs the owner of the plot. Immediately the cowboys fly to arms and meet the advancing soldiers. A battle ensues and during the midst of bursting shots and shell, Lucille is grabbed from her horse by a Mexican and forcibly taken to a hacienda. She outwits her guard, however, and jumps into an automobile and makes her escape.

In the meantime the Mexican position has been attacked by Federals. With soldiers moving in two directions during the progress of battle, Lucille glides the machine toward the American border. She is hotly pursued by a detachment of cavalry, but she outdistances the horsemen, and arrives at the American military headquarters in safety. The officers listen to her story and aid her with money and clothes. Now that she has thrown off Loubouque's power Lucille's first thought is of the papers which she hid in the spy's San Francisco home, and she sets out to get possession of them. While en route to San Francisco by train she is recognized by Thompson, one of Loubouque's principal confederates. Thompson telegraphs Loubouque of the girl's movements, and is instructed by Loubouque to allow Lucille to enter his home without interference, but that when she is once inside to hold her prisoner. Little suspecting that the spy knows of her movements, Lucille disguises herself and enters Loubouque's house to get the papers. She finds the papers, but a moment before she leaves, the room in which she is in hiding, sinks to the cellar, and she finds herself trapped and Hugo Loubouque awaiting her with a sinister smile.

SAYS CHURCH IS GOD'S TREASURE

Kingdom of Christ Shall Remain, Declares Rev. Stalker

Speaking on the subject, "John's Vision of the Church," from the text Rev. 1:12—"And I turned to see the voice that spake to me, and being turned, I saw seven golden candlesticks," Rev. D. D. Stalker at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning said:

"These are the words of the apostle John the author of the gospel and epistles that bear his name. He was a native of Bethsaida in Galilee, the son of Zebedee and Salome. He was the youngest of the twelve apostles and noted as the disciple whom Jesus loved, and as one of the three chosen to witness the restoration of Jairus' daughter to life, the transfiguration and the ascension in the garden. At the last supper he reclined on Jesus' bosom, and to his care the dying Redeemer committed His mother. He, with Peter and James was a pillar in the infant church and helped to guide her by his counsel. He was the only one of the twelve to escape martyrdom, but he suffered severely for his faith. He was banished to the lonely island of Patmos for the word of God and for the testimony of Jesus Christ."

"In his solitude, and on the Sabbath day, while contemplating on things holy, Jesus appeared to him in vision and with trumpet voice commanded him to write in a book that which he was about to reveal to him and send it to the seven churches in Asia. These things pertained to the future history of this church and would shortly come to pass. John turned and looked in the direction from which the voice came and a splendid scene presented itself. He saw seven golden candlesticks and the glorified Saviour in the midst. Jesus tells John that the seven candlesticks he saw represented the seven churches of Asia. God in describing the church uses various striking figures. He calls her a building, a habitation, a temple and in our text a golden candlestick."

"A candlestick is an instrument for holding, or being a receptacle of light. Light is often used in the Scriptures as an emblem of true religion and Christians are represented as light. Christ said to the disciple, 'Ye are the light of the world.' The church is the depository of sacred light. To her God has committed the divine oracles, she is the pillar and ground of the truth, the residence of the Holy Spirit and the place of spiritual manifestations. Wherever she goes light goes, civilization goes, industry and progress go."

"As a candlestick the church is not only the holder, but an instrument for the diffusion of light. She received the light that she might transmit it to the world. God says to her, 'Arise, shine.' And Jesus says 'Go ye into all the world and spread the gospel to every creature.' This is the standing order of the church, given by her great commander. To do nothing is to disobey and to be a traitor. The church is a great missionary organization commissioned to illuminate the world with the gospel that it may be won from the darkness of sin, sorrow, superstition and ignorance."

"Notice also quality of the church, a golden candlestick. This represents the purity of the church. She is divine and the only divine society on earth. There are many other excellent societies, but they are all human founded by man. The church has been instituted by God as his agent to win back the world to himself."

"Golden, on account of the rarity, preciousness and value of the church. Gold, as it is the rarest, as it is the most valuable of metals. The church is valuable in God's sight. She is His treasure. His portion and delight. She is engraven on the palms of His hands, and her walls are ever before Him. For her He made his greatest sacrifice. He gave His Son to the death, and she is dear to Him as the apple of the eye. Golden, on account of her durability. She is a kingdom that shall never be world, but shall stand gloriously forever. The kingdoms and associations of this world shall come to an end but the golden kingdom of but seldom is permitted to venture beyond the confines of the mansion. John is stricken with heart trouble and a young physician, Philip D'Arcy, is called in and installed in the house. Ruth and Philip fall in love. Henry, now a ragged wanderer, returns and one night John sees his brother's leering countenance bending over him. Henry seizes the key to the treasure room and creeps down the stairs. John follows and a fierce fight occurs between the brothers in which Henry hurls a lantern at John, which sets the house on fire and both brothers are precipitated into a dungeon, being killed. Ruth is trapped in the flames, but rescued by Philip, who, for his bravery, is rewarded with the hand of the fair owner of the mansion and treasures of the Gresham family."

THE CALUMET

Hypnotism, shadowgraphs and magic combine in an offering of merit at the Calumet this week and the biggest attraction since vaudeville was staged at this playhouse is drawing capacity audiences. Santanelli is a real wizard and the antics of his subjects provoke the laughter of spectators. The performance is bona fide and the attendance indicates that this form of attraction has not lost its drawing qualities. In addition to the comedy section of the bill, three reels of pictures will be shown daily.

Christ shall endure and His reign shall be eternal.

"Notice the numerical description of the church. Seven golden candlesticks. Representing literally the seven Asiatic churches. Spiritually the term may relate to the completeness of the church, as the number seven in Scripture indicates perfection. On the seventh day God rested from the work of creation, blessed and hallowed it. The seventh year was a sabbatic year among the Jews when the land was to lie fallow and no work done. We read also of seven priests, seven trumpets, seven spirits and seven angels. Admitting the term to indicate perfection, how does it apply to the church? The members of the church are not personally perfect. Neither is the church perfect in her collective form. She is unfinished and growing and not perfect in life or work."

"She is perfect, however, in her Head, Christ Jesus. He possesses no weakness or fallibility of any kind. She is perfect in her ordinances. All that the wisdom of God deemed necessary for her fruitfulness, comfort and salvation He gave her. She shall not receive any more, she does not need any more. She is perfect in the revelation God has given her. He has given her the complete Scriptures. The entire and all-sufficient words of truth. She is perfect in the spiritual influences she has. The Holy Spirit dwells in her and will guide her aright."

"Notice again, the visibility of the church. 'I saw,' says John, 'seven golden candlesticks.' The church is not a concealed society, working in the dark, but has a visible appearance and can be seen by all who will."

"She is visible to the heaven-born soul. He having given himself to Christ and tasted of His love, his first desire is to identify himself with the church and do his part in promoting her interests. Every person who loves Christ will love His church. She is visible to the world, and the world hates her, because she opposes the world's ways. She stands for law, for righteousness, justice, benevolence and brotherhood and everything that makes for the uplift and welfare of humanity. The world is selfish and will violate law, crush justice under foot and smother all feelings of brotherhood in order to carry out its selfish ends. As the church stands in the world's way and prevents it from executing its selfish and wicked purposes it hates the church. She is visible to the malignant and fallen spirits. They quail at her, curse her and use every means within their power to hinder her advances, because they know that she is the power by which they will ultimately be overthrown. She is visible to God Himself. His eyes and His heart are on her constantly. He loves her with an infinite love. She is visible to the angels. They are God's ministers, encamped round her and watching over her constantly. They are a mighty host and more powerful than Satan with all his emissaries."

"How beautiful then is the church of God? How happy her people? How great and numerous her privileges? How anxious should all her sons and daughters be to promote her interests? How miserable, how dreary, how hopeless, how unsafe would this world be without the church? To her we are indebted for all that is best in our civilization, for our enlightenment, for our peaceful homes, for our institutions for the unfortunate, and that which makes for the welfare of society and the race."

"Jesus with thy church abide, Be her Saviour, Lord and Guide, While on earth her faith is tried, We beseech Thee hear us."

Laurium Track Better Than That at Hancock Says Disbrow

"Bartering the park boulevards in the big cities, it is the finest stretch of road I have ever trod a machine over," was the expression of Louis Disbrow, when he pulled up in front of the Central Hotel after driving from Houghton this morning. After thus commenting on the county road, he said:

"I look for much better time in the auto races at Laurium. At Hancock there was no chance. The turns were cut up the worst I have ever seen and after the first few events a driver was lucky to get his car through the sand and gravel on the turns without blowing a shoe or breaking down. I understand the Laurium track is clay, and if it is properly rolled and packed, there is no better track made than a clay course for speed, but they are more dangerous on the turns, due to the failure of the front wheels to get the proper traction on a too hard a surface. That is what makes the turns on the paved speedways so dangerous and requires a much higher banking than the dirt courses."

Some one intimated that perhaps it was not all on account of the track that the drivers failed, which nettled the little champion, and he offered to drive a mile in forty seconds on the county road if he was permitted to make such speed and any one would put up a sufficient wager that it could not be done.

"Give me a hard track next Sunday and I will demonstrate that the 'Zip' is the fastest car in the peninsula now or ever was in the copper country, and if any of the drivers here now doubt that statement, it can be settled here next Sunday in a match race."

"I know the car McDonald will drive next Sunday is fast, for I have had an opportunity to drive it, and I also know that some of the other boys have record-breaking cars, but when it comes to the circular dirt tracks the 'Zip' and I have won the world's title and held it for the past two years and still stand ready to defend it against any driver living."

Disbrow, Hearne, Johnny Rimey and Fred Horey all drove their cars through during the forenoon and will try out the track as soon as it is put in condition.

Track in Good Shape.

Work on the track at the Laurium driving park, which is being made ready for the automobile races to be conducted Sunday afternoon, is progressing rapidly under the direction of the park management and will be completed about the middle of the week so that the drivers of the various speed creations which are to compete may have an opportunity to try out and tune up their cars as well as to familiarize themselves with the course. The heavy rains of the past few days make it easy to mold the clay track to the proper pitch and roll it smooth.

There is absolutely no danger of the local track being in poor shape for the race, for proofing by the experience with the Hancock track last Saturday, more attention will be paid to its preparation. It is also planned to subject the track to heavy automobile traffic for a day or so before the races to pack it to the proper degree of hardness after which it will be rolled and finished off.

The racing cars which are to compete Sunday afternoon at Laurium, arrived here today, and are stabled in various parts of town. They attracted little attention from local motorists.

BEEF SCARCER; PRICES HIGHER

Meat Dealers Claim Present Situation is Critical

"If there is one industry that seems to offer a greater opportunity for success, and possibly the speedy accumulation of a fortune, than any other in the copper country, it is the cattle raising industry," said a well known Laurium meat man this morning in discussing the present situation, which he describes as the most critical the retailer and the consumers have yet been called upon to face.

"The scarcity of beef seems to be countrywide," he continued, "and hogs, calves, mutton and lamb is to be classed equally in the luxury class. Prices that rose a year or eighteen months ago have been climbing gradually ever since and are still soaring. There seems to be no limit this side of the sky and if the retailer is to keep out of the financial shoals, he is forced to raise his prices or close his doors. Some have already raised their schedule, and others are hanging on in the hope that a turn will come soon."

"In a nutshell the situation is this. It is almost impossible for the retailer to get his orders filled. Packers claim beef is not to be purchased in the quantities desired and their ships ments to the copper country are decidedly limited. Prices are accordingly higher. With this situation confronting the small dealer, he really becomes the distributing agent for the packer, but with no salary attached.

"Only one solution seems to offer hope. More cattle, more hogs and more sheep must be produced. There are no better grazing lands in the country than those of the copper country and no reason in the world why the upper peninsula should not produce thousands of steers annually. The opportunity for profits seems bright when one considers that an ordinary cow is worth $55 to $75 for beef, that a yearling, 'baby beef' weighing from 500 to 600 pounds is worth from $90 to $100 on the hoof and a full grown steer of 1,100 or 1,200 almost twice as much."

"Naturally some knowledge of the cattle business is necessary but the big asset needed to make Cleveland a cattle and producing country, and to cheapen the cost of living, is capital. And no better opportunity is offered for a quick return on investment anywhere."

Discussing the situation generally, this dealer pointed out that vegetables and other foodstuffs are also high this year. Cabbage are selling for 6 cents per pound wholesale, onions at $8.25 per hundred pounds, and other vegetables at correspondingly high prices.
